Castleman disease of the esophagus. Castleman disease (CD) of the esophagus is a rare benign disorder whose clinicoradiologic spectrum is still ill defined and incompletely understood. Most reported cases are of the hyaline-vascular type. We report a 12-year-old boy with Castleman disease who presented initially with dysphagia and vomiting. Biopsy of the lesion showed the typical histologic features of CD. The implications of these findings are discussed.

Q: Automate Script Changes For Projects On TeamCity I have a separate script I would like to run on my TeamCity server that pulls down changesets and builds out my current projects in Git. I can't find the way to set up this as a build step though. I have seen the set of instructions on this page but it doesn't mention this level of automation. It refers to creating pre-build steps (IIRC) which seem to apply to the actual binaries instead. I can get it to work by using a terminal command with the TeamCity server running my script which modifies the projects it looks at but I feel like that's a poor solution as it's only possible to get this running if I have admin access to the machine. Is it possible to set something up in TeamCity to handle this type of automation? A: Yes, you can add a Build Step that runs your script on build, and in there, configures the git URL and repository name of the repository you want to pull from.

Q: Execute permissions on Oracle 11g R2 I would like to execute some sql statements in SQL Developer such as UPDATE table1 SET col1=VAL FROM table2 WHERE table1.id = table2.id And I get this error: Permission denied. I have added my schema as an administrator, if this is wrong, plz guide me with a step by step tutorial. If the above is ok, I also get PLS-00201: identifier 'table2.id' must be declared A: It looks like you're working in a package schema. The owner of a package can only execute that package, and nobody else can execute anything in the package except PL/SQL source code. You've got two choices: (Recommended) put your update into a procedure in the package and execute that instead of your SQL commands. or (Bad) add the table2.id column to the schema of your users table. Both options are documented here:
