EPSXe EPSXe is an unofficial emulator for PlayStation 1 video game consoles, based on the Intel x86 architecture. The installation of the emulator includes a set of plugins to enhance visualisation, sound and the general performance. EPSXe can run games on the PlayStation 1 under an emulator and not on a PlayStation emulator or an emulator on Windows. Since version 1.0 on, ePSXe can emulate a complete PS1 software: booting hardware and middleware, video games, PlayStation 2 games and PC games through emulation of the PlayStation 2's CPU and Video subsystems. The software has currently no official support from Sony. EPSXe is freeware (under certain conditions) and support non-commercial use of its software, therefore a download and installation of a copy of ePSXe is not subject to the EULA or CDkeys. If a newer version of ePSXe is released, users can continue to use an old version of ePSXe for as long as they want, but a new installation is required. PS1 games can be played in any resolution and any aspect ratio by selecting the desired parameters in the configuration menu. The application automatically optimizes certain aspects, such as image adjustment or system optimization. The quality of the video is adjustable by changing the resolution, number of frames per second, the bitmap quality and more. Games Prior to version 1.7.7 of the emulator, ePSXe could only be used to emulate PS1 games in 480 x 320 resolution and aspect ratio (4:3) with 16x loop. However, the emulation program is now capable of emulating a wider range of resolutions and aspect ratios. A complete list of supported resolutions and aspect ratios can be found here. I'm facing the problem to have a system that have two customer user group (front end and admin user) and my customer could log in with their account that have their own front end user. However my admin user could only be the login for my customer and to have one email address. I am trying to search for wordpress user role based and it might be a work around, but still I have so much questions and don't really know where to start. Is it because I can't create role to have only front end (or set the role to be front end)? Is there any other ways to have only one front end for a customer and admin? Thanks in advance, A: You will need to create a custom role. I am not sure why you want to limit access to just admins, so I am going to assume it is a security issue. You would create a custom role with a few settings. Front-End Only Check If someone from one role can administer another role, they can manipulate data and make changes to data. Check No one can use the administration back end of the site Check If someone from one role can edit other user accounts, they can change other users' data. Check Has the same effect as checking "Check" and "No one" together Lastly, not everyone with "admin" access will be an admin (both as a user and an admin). 1. You could log all the users in with "admin" role and check their role on the way in. 2. You could use your security plugin to check the users login with the "admin" role. 3. You could add a role to each group (ie, 3da54e8ca3
