A vital role for the trigeminal nerve in the modulation of inflammation in the middle ear. This study characterizes the inflammatory response in the middle ear of the rat after destruction of the trigeminal nerve (trigeminal ablation, trigA). A single destructive lesion to the trigeminal nerve was made under sterile conditions and the middle ears of the animals were investigated at various time intervals. The results indicate that the sensory innervation of the middle ear is essential in the tonic regulation of the middle ear inflammation, as an ipsilateral lesion of the trigeminal
