This sentiment doesn't usually come from real, long-lasting feelings. "You know what I love about you?" "I love your sense of humor." "I love your special family." Those statements do not represent real love. Usually the phrase is spoken sarcastically. This phrase can work in a sarcastic manner because it is a way of telling someone that you love them for what they lack. "I love you because you are an idiot." "I love you because you are messy." "I love you because you are so immature, childish and can't keep your clothes on." Those phrases work on me because I know they are meant as sarcasm, yet I'm still ok with them and why wouldn't I be? If I want to say that to someone, I'm more likely to say "You're adorable," or "You are so adorable" instead. If I'm really talking about how I actually feel, I'll use the real words. The "You know what I
